The Hebrew word for rest is shabath, which is closely related to the word for Sabbath. It indicates a cessation of labor upon completion of a project. God was not weary and in need of rest; He was finished with His work of creating and so He stopped. God's special blessing rests on the seventh day. It is not only "blessed" but also "sanctified," which carries the idea of being set apart and specially devoted to God. Thus, God gave special significance to the Sabbath in the context of the relationship between God and humans.

Adult Sabbath School Lesson
Wednesday, January 16, 2013

So crucial to our relationship with God is our trust of God and of His Word. If we can't trust the Word of God on something as foundational and as explicitly stated as the Genesis Creation in six literal days, what can we trust Him on?
