God reveals Himself through special revelation but also through nature in more limited and general ways. General revelation through nature sends mixed messages about God. Job gives us some perspective on why natural evil occurs; yet, evil is still permitted by God. The reason for this occurrence is that humankind's Fall was, in part, due to the desire to transcend creaturely limits and become co-deity with God. God's corrective measures resulted in curses that increase human limitations. These limitations help us to more easily acknowledge that we can never be co-deity and to recognize our need to depend on a God higher and more powerful than ourselves.
